CONSPECTUS

OF THE

ENTIRE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

ANIMALIA.

Division.	Class.
I. VERTEBRATA....	1. MAMMALIA 2. AVES 3. REPTILIA 4. PISCES
	1. CEPHALOPODA 2. PTEROPODA 3. GASTEROPODA
II. MOLLUSCA.....	4. ACEPHALA 5. BRACHIOPODA 6. CIRRHOPODA
III. ARTICULATA....	1. ANNELIDES 2. CRUSTACEA 3. ARACHNIDES 4. INSECTA
IV. RADIATA.....	1. ECHINODERMATA 2. ENTOZOA 3. ACALYPHAE 4. POLYPI 5. INFUSORIA

All animals may be reduced to one or other of these classes. It will be observed, that though the term 'Invertebrata' is introduced, it is not employed as significant of any peculiar form. The reason of this is, that it is merely a negative character, and such should never be used where positive can be obtained. Its vagueness is evident from its belonging to three out of four of the great primary divisions of the 'Animal Kingdom.'

VERTEBRATA.

CLASS I.—MAMMALIA.

This class is divided into nine orders.

Class.	Order.
MAMMALIA.....	1. Bimana 2. Quadrumana 3. Carnassier 4. Marsupiata 5. Rodentia 6. Edentata 7. Ruminantia 8. Pachydermata 9. Cetacea	{ Unguiculata. } { Ungulata.

With respect to the term Carnassier, used by Cuvier for his third order, some observations will be found in our second volume, at the commencement of the supplementary matter on the order.

ORDER I.—BIMANA.

This order contains only one genus, and a single species, with its varieties, as here under :

Genus.	Species.	Varieties.
HOMO.....	HOMO	{ 1. Caucasian 2. Mongolian 3. Ethiopian 4. Malayan? 5. American?

Only the first three varieties are considered by Cuvier as possessing sufficiently distinctive characters to deserve separate description. “The Malays,” he says, “pass by imperceptible shades into their neighbours, the Caucasian Hindoos on one side, and the Mongolian Chinese on the other.” The Americans also want that precise and constant character necessary to constitute a peculiar race. For these reasons we have marked the two last varieties with a query.

In this order we have given even the varieties; in the others we can go no farther than the subgenera, with one specific example of each: our space compels us to this arrangement.

ORDER II.—QUADRUMANA.

Of this order three principal genera are enumerated, viz. I. Simia, Lin., II. Hapale, Illig., and III. Lemur, Lin.; the first and last of these contain so many subgenera and species that they almost deserve to rank as distinct families, for Simia has fifteen subgenera, Lemur five, while Hapale has only two, which however contain more than eight different species.

Tarsius, Storr. L. spectrum, Pall.

This is according to the classification followed by Cuvier in the second edition of his Règne Animal, published in 1829.

The first eight subgenera of Simiae inhabit the old world, the remainder are found in the new, and have received the general appellation of SAPAJOUS (Cebus Erxl.).

ORDER III.—CARNASSIER.

This order is divided into three great families, Cheiroptera, Insectivora, and Carnivora, the last of which is subdivided into three tribes, Plantigrada, Digitigrada, and Amphibia. In the first edition of the Règne Animal the Marsupiata were added as a fourth family of this order; they now, with greater propriety, constitute an order by themselves.

The tribe Digitigrada contains three subdivisions, distinguished by their mode of dentition, and represented by the weasel, the dog, and the cat : these we have endeavoured to indicate above by smaller brackets, within the general bracket including all the genera of the tribe. The Amphibia also formerly made but two genera, the seals (Phoca) and the Morses (Trichecus), the first of which we see Cuvier has here extended to several subdivisions.

ORDER IV.—MARSUPIATA.

The arrangement of these animals, chiefly inhabitants of the Australian continent, seems by no means decided. In his first edition Cuvier had made of them a family of the order Carnassier ; in the second he established them into a separate order ; but even then expressed his opinion that they ought rather to be looked on as a class containing several orders running parallel with the orders of ordinary quadrupeds. He finally, however, left them as an order divided into seven genera, three of which are subdivided.

ORDER V.—RODENTIA.

In his first edition Cuvier had divided this order into two sections, the first possessing perfect, the second only rudimentary clavicles : these divisions ran by such gradual shades into each other, that the point of separation was, we may say, almost arbitrary. In his second edition, therefore, he contents himself by arranging his genera and indicating such as possess strong clavicles or the reverse.

Cuvier suggests that the Chinchilla, the furs of which arrive in such quantities in these countries, should, from its evident connection with the cavies, come at the end of this order. Nothing but want of information respecting its dentition prevented him from placing it there. The Marmot Diana, of which we gave a figure in our third volume, p. 172, he says is the same as the Viscache of Azzara, and considers it merely as a larger kind of Chinchilla, with rougher and longer hair.

ORDER VI.—EDENTATA.

The Edentata Cuvier divides into three tribes, the Tardigrades, including the first two genera; the common Edentata, including the next four; and the Monotremata, including the remaining two.

This order is also divided into three tribes or families, I. the Proboscidiiana, or those furnished with a proboscis, including the elephant and some fossil animals; II. the common Pachydermata, including all the rest of the order except the horse, which belongs to family III., Solipeda, or solid-footed.

III. SOLIPEDA . . . Equus, L. E. Caballus, L. the Horse

The common Pachydermata we have marked off into two subdivisions, in the first of which the toes are of an even number, four or two, and assume something of a bifurcated appearance, approaching, as do also in some measure their skeletons and stomachs, the forms proper to ruminant animals; in the second subdivision the toes are of an odd number, and want this appearance. Sus, Phacocœrus, and Dicotyles, are merely subgenera of the Linnæan genus Sus, which name we have left to the first of them.

ORDER VIII.—RUMINANTIA.

This order is naturally distinguished into two families, those without and those with horns. To the former belong the camel and musk; to the latter all the other genera. Horns are of three kinds, specimens of which may be seen in the deciduous antler of the stag, the permanent invested protuberances of the cameleopard, and the true horn or hollow corneous case of the cow, sheep, antelope, &c. These differences have been employed to subdivide the second family. Col. Hamilton Smith divides the whole order into five tribes, the types of which are the camel, the stag, the giraffe, the goat, and the ox. For further particulars see our fifth volume, p. 296, et seq.

CLASS II.—AVES.

This class comprises six orders.

Class.	Order.
AVES	1. Accipitres (Birds of prey) 2. Passeres (Sparrow kind) 3. Scansores (Climbers) 4. Gallinacea (Poultry kind) 5. Grallæ (Waders) 6. Palmipedes (Web-footed)

ORDER I.—ACCIPITRES.

This order includes birds generally known as birds of prey; and is divided by Cuvier into the two natural families of diurnal and nocturnal; the former including the two great genera of Linnæus, the vultures and falcons; the latter, his genus of owls. These genera Cuvier has subdivided as under.

ORDER II.—PASSERES.

This order is not clearly defined, nor does it appear very well divided. As to the former, it seems to contain every bird that does not belong to any other of the orders; as to the latter, Cuvier appears to have done whatever was possible, under the present state of knowledge, by using for his primary divisions the nature of the feet, and for his secondary, or division into families, the peculiarities of the bill. As respects the feet, they are divided into those which have the external toe united to the internal only as far as the first or second phalanx, and those called Syndactyles, in which the union extends to all but the last articulation. The first of these divisions is by far the most numerous, and contains the families Dentirostres, Fissirostres, Conirostres, and Tenuirostres, with their several genera and subgenera, as underneath: the second forms but one family, containing six genera.

² It does not seem very evident from the text, whether Pyrrhula should be a genus, or only a subgenus of Fringilla; in truth, the transitions, particularly in this family, are often so gradual as to elude all attempts at definition.

ORDER IV.—GALLINACEA.

Most of our barn-door fowl, and many excellent game-birds, are to be found in this order, which takes its name from Gallus gallinaceus, the common cock and hen. It is composed in a great measure of one natural family, and is divided into genera, sub-genera, and species.

ORDER V.—GRALLÆ.

These are generally long-legged wading birds, for the most part living in the vicinity of water, if we except the ostrich and cassowary, which indeed did not originally belong to this order, as established by Linnæus. Cuvier divides the entire order into five families, which we shall indicate by braces, and three distinct genera, which cannot well be reduced to any of the five families, and which he seems to think may almost be looked on as constituting little families in themselves. The families he has named are, 1. Brevipennes, containing genera i. and ii. ; 2. Pressirostres, containing genera iii—viii. ; 3. Cultrirostres, containing genera ix—xviii. ; 4. Longirostres, containing genera xix. and xx. ; and, 5. Macroductyli, containing genera xxi—xxiv. ; after which come the three detached and concluding genera.

ORDER VI.—PALMIPEDES.

This order contains generally such birds as are web-footed, and fitted for an aquatic life. It is divided into four natural families ; 1. the Brachyptera, or Divers ; 2. the Longipennes, or High-flying birds ; 3. the Totipalmes, in which the thumb, as well as the other toes, is included in the common web or membrane of the foot ; and, 4. the Lamellirostres, which have the bill furnished with rows of laminæ, resembling fine teeth.

The last subgenus, tadorna, is still further subdivided, and made to contain the Muscovy duck, the mallard, the teal, &c.; but our limits prevent us entering into such minute details.

VERTEBRATA.

CLASS III.—REPTILIA.

Reptiles are divided into four sufficiently natural orders; the Chelonian, Saurian, Ophidian, and Batrachian, severally represented by the Tortoise, the Lizard, the Serpent, and the Frog. The last of these is remarkable for presenting in early life a structure different from that which it is to assume when adult: thus the young tadpole, it is well known, breathes by gills, and in some genera of this order the gills are never lost. An easy transition is thus formed from the class Reptiles to the subsequent class Fish.

ORDER I.—CHELONIA.

This order contains but one genus, the Linnæan genus Testudo, which has been divided into five subgenera, as follow.

ORDER II.—SAURIA.

From the considerable differences existing between animals possessing the general characters of this order, it has been found necessary to divide it into six families, represented severally by the Crocodiles, Monitors, Iguanas, Geckos, Cameleons, and Skinks; of these families, the first and fifth have each only one genus, the second two, and the others have several genera.

The five subgenera of the genus Gecko all agree in having the toes wide and dilated; the Stenodactyli and Gymnodactyli want this character, and are therefore placed as separate genera. To the preceding family, the Iguaniens, belong the Geosurus, Negulosaurus, Iguanodon, and many other fossil animals.

ORDER III.—OPHIDIA.

This order is primarily divided into three families : 1. the Snakes, Anguis; 2. the true Serpents; and, 3. the naked Serpents. Of these, the 1st and 3d contain each but one genus; the 2d contains all the rest, and, as these differ in several respects, is subdivided, 1st, into two tribes, the Double-marcheurs, that is, those that move with either end foremost, and the Serpents proper, which always advance with the head in front. The Serpents proper are then divided according as they are non-venomous or venomous; and afterwards these latter according as they have isolated fangs, or fangs accompanied by the ordinary jaw teeth. Finally come the division into genera, subgenera, and species; but of all these our plan and limits will only permit us to notice the families, genera, and subgenera, illustrating as usual with a specific example of each.

ORDER IV.—BATRACHIA.

This order is divided by Mr. Gray (see Synopsis at the end of our ninth volume) into two very natural orders or families, according as they do or do not undergo metamorphosis. Cuvier has indicated the same division, and has then proceeded to subdivide them as follows:—

VERTEBRATA.

CLASS IV.—PISCES.

This class is divided into two great series, the Ossei and Chondropterygii; in the former of which the skeleton is formed of true bone, while in the latter it always remains in the state of cartilage or gristle. The former is divided into six, the latter into two orders; the principal characters being derived from the first gills, as the names of the orders will show.

Class.	Series.	Order.

	II. CHONDROPTERYGII (Cartilaginous fishes)	7. Eleutherobranchii (gills free) 8. Pectobranchii (gills confined)

SERIES I.—OSSEI.

ORDER I.—ACANTHOPTERYGII.

The Acanthopterygians make three-fourths of all the fishes known, and are the most perfectly wrought type of the class. The families into which they are divided are in general very natural, but present so many varieties with respect to those characters on which it might be supposed they could be grouped into orders or other subdivisions, that it has been found expedient to leave them all together.

DIVISION III.—ARTICULATA.

In this grand division, the body, and in general the limbs, are surrounded by, or encased in, articulated rings, affording a support for the soft parts, and an attachment for the muscles.

It is divided into four classes.

Division.	Class.
ARTICULATA..	I. ANNELIDA, Lam. or, Worms with red blood, Cuv. II. CRUSTACEA III. ARACHNIDA IV. INSECTA

CLASS I.—ANNELIDA, or, Worms with red blood.

Body soft, elongated, articulated or divided into segments or transverse folds.

The Annelida are divided into three orders, viz :—

Class.	Order.
ANNELIDA..	1. Tubicola 2. Dorsibranchiata 3. Abranchiata

ORDER I.—TUBICOLA.

These animals form tubes to live in, either of calcareous matter exuded from their own body, or from foreign substances, to which tubes they are not however attached, like the tubicolous or testaceous mollusca.

DIVISION IV.—RADIATA, OR ZOO PHYTES.

THIS division includes the most simple forms of animated nature, and although these forms vary considerably in the several classes, all show traces, more or less distinct, of radiation from a common centre.

It includes five classes.

Division.	Class.
RADIATA..	I. ECHINODERMATA II. ENTOZOA, or, Intestinal Worms III. ACALYPHÆ IV. POLYPI V. INFUSORIA

CLASS I.—ECHINODERMATA.

This name is strictly applicable to the genus Echinus, sea-urchins, or hedgehogs, but is applied more generally to the most complicated of the radiated animals. All the genera have a well organized skin, with distinct viscera, and a sort of imperfect vascular system.

The class includes two orders.

ECHINODERMATA..	{ 1. Pedicellata 2. Apedicellata
-----------------	-------------------------------------

ORDER I.—PEDICELLATA.

The envelope in this order is pierced with apertures, through which issue numerous membranaceous tentacula, which acting as organs of motion, are called the feet.

They are divided into two orders.

Fossil genera.

CLASS V.—INFUSORIA.

Microscopic animals, in general of extreme simplicity of organization. Some of the genera, however, appear to be more complicated, though the details of their organization escape the deepest powers of the microscope.

The class is divided into two orders.

Class.	Order.
INFUSORIA . . .	{ 1. Rotifera. 2. Homogenea.

ORDER I.—ROTIFERA.

Body oval and gelatinous; a mouth, stomach, intestines, and arms have been observed. The mouth or head is surrounded by denticulated lobes, which vibrate with great rapidity, and present the appearance under the glass of a revolving wheel.

Genus.	Subgenus.	Example of Species.
Furcularia	{ 1. Furcularia, prop. . . F. 2. Trichocerca, Lam. . . . Tri. paxillum, Müll. 3. Vaginicola, Lam. . . . Tri. innata, Müll.
Tubicolaria, Lam.		Vorticella tetrapetala
Brachionus, Müll.

ORDER II.—HOMOGENEA.

Body gelatinous, but without appearance of stomach, intestines, anus, and sometimes of mouth.

ALPHABETICAL TABLE

AUTHORS QUOTED IN THIS WORK.

In explaining the abbreviations employed to indicate the numerous writers necessarily referred to in this work, it has been thought useful to give the reader a general idea of their profession, the period of their birth and decease, and of the character of their writings.

ABILD.—ABILDGAARDT (Peter Christian), a Danish naturalist ; Professor at Copenhagen, died in 1808.

One of the continuers of the Zoologia Danica of Müller, and author of various Memoirs published among those of the Society of Natural History, and of The Royal Society of Sciences of Copenhagen, as well as of the Society of Naturalists of Berlin.

ACAD. DES SC.

I thus quote the "Mémoires de l'Académie des Sciences," of Paris, of which one quarto volume was annually published from 1700 to 1790.

I have also occasionally quoted the "Mémoires des Savans Etrangers à l'Académie," eleven volumes, from 1750 to 1786.

I have also frequently quoted the "Memoirs of the Academy of Berlin" from 1819, and the new ones of the Academia Naturae Curiosorum of Bonn, from Vol. IX. 1818, at which period they assumed their new form.

For those of the Academy of Petersburg, see Peterob. or Petrop.

which are on the subject of animals,
was mostly published by his suc-

during his life. It is an undigested and wearisome compilation.
